Impressive Rites Held Sunday for Senator Robinson

Scores of High Officials Gather at Little Rock for Funeral

CHURCH IS JAMMED

Torrential Rain Muffles Final Requiem of Demo Leader

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — (AP) — Joseph Taylor Robinson returned to Arkansas soil Sunday, his final requiem muffled by the thundering downpour of a torrential rain.

Scores of the nation's highest, gathered to pay tribute to the memory of the man who steered so much democratic legislation through stormy decades, stood drenched around his flower-banked grave. Lightning flashed and thunder echoed over the gentle rolling hills.

The dramatic conclusion to a funeral which was one of the most impressive ever held in the south, sent gathered thousands scurrying to their homes and shelter.

The burial was in vivid contrast to the funeral rites at fashionable First Methodist church a half-hour earlier. There 1500 persons jammed the auditorium to capacity. A mid-summer sun blazed outside. Through a high-arched glass a shaft of light fell full upon the fling draped casket, before which the heavily veiled widow and a score of relatives bowed their heads in grief.

"I am the resurrection and the life," intoned the Rev. H. Bass, pastor, reading the funeral ritual of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. "The Lord gave and the Lord has taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord."

The familiar cadences of the hymn, "Lead Kindly Light," rose from a mixed quartet, accompanied by soft organ tones.

A brief prayer by the pastor was followed by the reading of the scripture—the 15th chapter of Paul's first letter to the Corinthians, in which is written:

"Oh death where is thy sting? Oh grave where is thy victory?"

The quartet sang "It Is Well With My Soul."

"What word of eulogy could I speak that would be sufficient?" the pastor asked, beginning a brief tribute to the late senator. "Few others in the history of our nation's life have lived so tremendously."

Pastor's Sermon

Recalling the fame history gave to Webster, Clay and Calhoun, Mr. Watts said that it was too early to put Senator Robinson in a category with them.

The pastor characterized Robinson as a lover of country, national ideal and "true democrat in a great republic." The senator was, he said, a man of great force whose greatest attributes were militancy and sincerity.

"He was a fighter," the pastor said, "but no one ever denied his courage or questioned the undoubted sincerity of conviction with which he entered the fight. He denounced wrong and injustice to its face. . . . Perhaps no man in our generation has been more nearly a representative American."

The closing prayer at both the church

Farmers' Income Is Highest Since 1929

1937 Income Estimated to Be Nine and One-Half Billion Dollars

WASHINGTON, (AP)—More dollars are rolling into the farmer's pockets this year than in any year since 1929. Department of Agriculture economists calculated that the 1937 cash income of farmers would be around nine and one-half billion dollars.

This will be almost one and one-half billion more than they got in 1936 and more than twice the cash they received in 1932, when their products brought them $4,377,000,000, the smallest sum in years.

During the first five months of this year, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported that cash income, including government payments, at $3,202,000,000, an increase of 21 per cent over same period last year.

Fighting Renewed by China, Japan

Troops Clash West of Peking—Grave View by Jap Officials

TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—Domei (Japanese) news agency dispatch from Tientsin Monday said that fighting had broken out again between Chinese and Japanese troops west of Peking in spite of a military agreement reached Sunday at Tientsin.

Japanese officers said that Chinese soldiers were engaged in construction of a concrete pillbox at Lukouhiano, on the Lungting river 10 miles west of Peking, and had opened fire on Japanese troops.

Other details were lacking. Japanese officials said they took a grave view of the incident.

"Act of Aggression"

TOKIO.—(AP)—The Japanese government announced officially Monday that heavy concentrations of Chinese troops had been made near Peking constituting a direct act of aggression against Japan.

The movement of troops into Hopeh province, scene of more than a week of intermittent fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops, was said by the government to constitute a violation of the two-year-old Hotan agreement.

The agreement was signed in 1935 between Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, Chinese minister of war and then head of the North China government, and Gen. Yoshijiro Umezu, then commander of the Japanese North China garrison.

Terms of the agreement have never been made public and the Nanking government does not accept it as valid. The Japanese army, which has the power to enforce its alleged terms, has asserted it contains a Chinese pledge not to send troops of the Nanking government into North China.

The War Office announced that the "invasion" of Hopeh province, southern part of the semi-autonomous jurisdiction of the Chahar-Hopeh Political Council, was made by the 32nd and 58th Chinese divisions.

Peking Strengthened

Chinese military authorities were reported here to be strengthening feverishly Peking's fortifications. The majority of Japanese civilians and thousands of Chinese were said to have left the ancient capital of China.

Japanese officials discounted reports from Tientsin, headquarters of the Japanese army in North China, that Chinese local officials had agreed to demands of the Japanese army to settle the grave crisis in Sino-Japanese affairs.

Fighting broke out between troops of the two nations a few miles west of Peking July 7 when a Chinese bridge guard clashed with night maneuvering Japanese troops.

Hails U. S. Statement

TOKIO.—(AP)—The Japanese press hailed the July 10 statement of Secretary of State Cordell Hull as showing that the American government's understanding of the Far Eastern situation has "improved" in recent years. Hull's statement, issued after the Chinese ambassador to Washington had called attention to "the threat by Japan" in North China, was couched in general terms and avoided specific mention of Japan or China.

The newspapers featured prominently with Hull's photograph, his statement that the United States stood for observance of international agreement.

Great and Small Join in Sending Flowers to Senator Joe T. Robinson

Presidential Wreath Placed on Coffin at State Capitol—Garner Leads the Official Washington Party Past Bier

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—The great and the small joined Sunday in sending flowers as their last tribute to Senator Joseph T. Robinson.

Myriads of flowers, ranging from the austere whiteness of Easter lilies to blood red roses and carnations, were banked high about the casket of Arkansas' foremost son as it rested first in the home, as it lay in state in the Capitol, as obsequies were conducted at the First Methodist church and as it went to its final resting place in rain swept Roselawn cemetery.

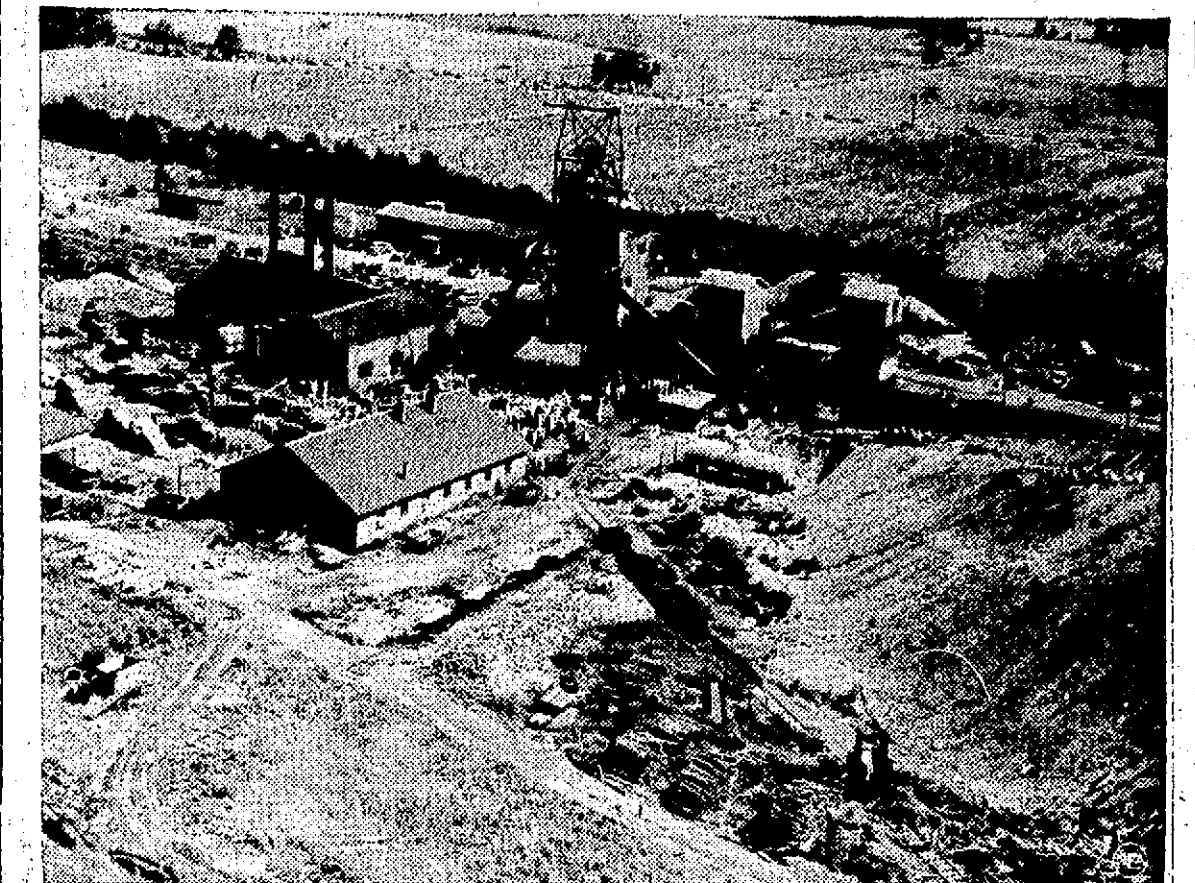

There was hardly need to move the spires, wreaths and crosses from one place to another—no one spot could have held them all.

Classic in its simplicity, indicative of the grief of its giver, the presidential wreath of deep green, almost black, bay leaves lay on the coffin at the Capitol. From its top trailed a broad taffeta ribbon of rich bronze, its only touch of color.

Two presidential aides in full dress uniform stepped forward in the Capitol to lay the wreath on the casket, just before Vice President Garner led the official Washington party past the bier.

The casket lay on the western edge of the rotunda opposite the main doors through which the thousands filed to view the body. Solid rectangles of flowers, fully ten feet high and forty feet in length, served as a background for the bier. Predominant in the display was the apricot of the

Carrying Victims Out of Indiana Mine Where Blast Killed 20, Injured Three

ABOVE—Crowds of relatives gathered around the shaft of the Glendora Coal Company's Baker mine near Sullivan, Ind., as this air view was made, waiting for rescue squads to bring up the bodies of 20 workmen who were killed in an explosion two miles back and 225 feet down from the tipple. Three others were injured. More than 200 men were in the mine when the blast occurred, and the families, in a torment of fear, were waiting to see if explosion-burned victims were their own husbands, sons or fathers.

RIGHT—Fellow miners who had put on gas masks and ridden in mule-drawn carts through corridors to "Room 18 East" at the Glendora Coal Company's Baker mine, near Sullivan, Ind., where two explosions killed 20 workmen and hurt three, are seen as they carried out one of the victims. Piccard's Flight Ends in Tree Top

Scientist Escapes Injury When Craft Bursts Into Flames

LANSING, Iowa.—(AP)—Dr. Jean Piccard's first flight in his novel craft, buoyed by multiple balloons, terminated in a hazardous tree top landing early Sunday.

The gondola of "The Pleiades," first scientific lifting craft ever to carry a man aloft, burst into flames a moment after Dr. Piccard crept from it and climbed down a tree in an isolated valley nine miles from this Northeastern Iowa village.

He was uninjured.

The scientist said he believed the fire, which melted the metal of the gondola and destroyed the instruments within, might have been caused by the TNT detonation by which he cut away the upper half of the 95 four-foot balloons.

Dr. Piccard came down six hours after he took off, at 12:08 a. m., central standard time, from Rochester, Minn., 110 miles northeast. He said he reached a maximum height of 11,000 feet.

Norwithstanding the misfortune, the balloonist termed his flight, an experiment looking toward an ascension into the stratosphere "beautiful" and said he had learned much from it. He sought to determine the feasibility of using a large number of balloons instead of a single large one.

Asked about the possibility of a considered stratosphere flight with 2000 such balloons, Dr. Piccard said it probably would be attempted if Saturday night's experiment were proved sufficiently successful.

"Wait until I digest the results," he said.

The senator's birthplace and boyhood home, Lamoine, was represented by one of the most beautiful of all offerings—a wreath of pink carnations and white lilies.

As the casket was placed in the funeral car, at the Capitol only two offerings were with it—the family's spray of pure white lilies and the dark, bronze presidential wreath.

Again at the cemetery there were flowers beyond description. Some were laid in green carpets near the grave. Hundreds of sprays and standard served as a semi-circular barrier to hold back the hundreds who witnessed the final rites—but very short because of a driving rain that started to fall not long after Mrs. Robinson arrived.

Method of Naming Next Senator Is Still Undecided

Former Governor Terrill Says People Demanding an Election

COMMITTEE TO MEET

Opponents of Court Bill Will Seek Vote This Week

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—A breach among Arkansas Democratic leaders over the method of nominating a party candidate to succeed Senator Joe T. Robinson became more apparent Monday.

The Democratic State Committee, most of its 35 members closely aligned with Governor Carl E. Bailey, will meet here Friday to nominate or call a primary in advance of a special election expected about September 14.

Former Governor Terrill, unsuccessful candidate for governor in 1936 against Bailey, issued a formal statement declaring that the people of Arkansas were "demanding a primary election."

Sources close to the governor said emphatically that no decision had been reached on whether a temporary appointment to the senate would be made by Bailey, the appointee to serve until the election is held.

Prominent among those mentioned for such an appointment are E. B. Hays, Democratic national committee man for Arkansas; Lamar Williamson, Monticello attorney; and state banker Richard Thompson of Eureka Springs.

Seek Vote on Court Bill

ABOARD SPECIAL CONGRESSIONAL TRAIN.—(AP)—Opponents of President Robinson's court bill announced Monday that they would seek a senate vote on that bitterly fought issue early this week.

Senator Burke, Democrat of Tennessee and leader of the opposition, said that a motion to send the supreme court reorganization measure back to the committee for further study would probably be made Tuesday.

He added:

"We are confident we can carry the motion by a comfortable margin," ending the political truce that was declared immediately after the death of the senate majority leader, Joe T. Robinson who died last Wednesday.

Senator Burke's statement indicated that the five-month struggle over the judiciary legislation was nearing its end.

Opposes Court Bill

ALBANY, N. Y.—(AP)—Governor Herbert Lehman, in a letter to U. S. Senator Robert Wagner, Democrat of New York, asked him Monday to voice opposition to President Roosevelt's supreme court reorganization bill.

Mr. Patton was accompanied to Hope by Mrs. Patton and their son, Mr. Patton formerly lived at Pine Bluff, but left the state many years ago to make their home in St. Louis.

They, partially dehydrated and sweetened, can be blended with certain other foods into a nutritious and palatable new series of edibles, Ramsell and Ward report. It can be used in fruit whips, candy and sometimes may be substituted for egg white.

They makes an excellent icing with the addition of suitable flavors and colors, and is "tops" when used at the corner drugstore with hot chocolate and sundaes.

Born at Jericho, Mont., in April, 1912, Monte ran away from home for a winter, once was caught in a coyote trap, spent a winter in Florida, tried to swallow a fish hook, suffered a fractured tail, and has killed scores of mountain rats.

She is toughless now, but she still can whip Toughy, the Dickinson dog.

Navy Quits Hunt for Miss Earhart

Aircraft Carrier Lexington Ordered Back to San Diego

HONOLULU, (AP)—The United States Navy gave Amelia Earhart up for dead at sunset Sunday, when it announced an end to the vast South Seas hunt for the aviatrix and ordered the return of the giant aircraft carrier Lexington to its base in San Diego.

Three destroyers, also in the hunt for the aviatrix and her navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, will return to the Pacific coast via Pearl Harbor, where they will refuel.

Two weeks ago Friday, the world-famous aviatrix and Noonan vanished on a 2,570-mile flight from Lae, New Guinea, to equatorial Howland island, a mere dot two feet above the sea.

Closing the Period of Ocean Pioneers

MAYBE it was not altogether without significance that Amelia Earhart turned up missing in the Pacific on the very day that Pan-American and Imperial Airways began work on the establishing of a commercial trans-Atlantic air service.

The old eras and the new, in ocean flying, thus overlapped very neatly.

Miss Earhart, gallant lady and gifted flyer, was perhaps the last of the free-lance trail blazers. That is to say that she stood for the old era in ocean flying—the era of high adventure, danger, and high-hearted romance. It was a great era and it had some great names on its rolls: Miss Earhart's, Lindbergh's, Byrd's, Chamberlain's, and all the rest. But it was an era which ended (as you might say, if you wished to be fanciful) when Miss Earhart's radio went silent somewhere off Howland Island.

x x x

AS IT ended, a new one began. While Miss Earhart's big plane was coming down somewhere on the surface of the Pacific, an even larger plane was taking to the air at Port Washington, Long Island. The Pan-American Clipper III was setting forth on the first leg of a projected flight to England. At the same time, the Imperial Airways ship Caledonia was getting ready to take off from England for America.

There is no "lone wolf" angle to either of these flights. They are the fruits of years of research. Their object is not to take risks but to avoid them; not to show what one man in a plane can do, but to demonstrate that the co-operation of many men, prepared as carefully as the operations of a railroad are prepared, can span the ocean with regular, passenger-carrying commercial service that will be safe and unexciting enough to pay its own way.

x x x

SO SAY all of this is not to cast the slightest aspersion on the free-lance tribe, as represented by Miss Earhart. The free-lancers blazed the trail. Without them, Pan-American and Imperial would not be doing what they are doing. The free-lancers were the pioneers, so to speak, who went on ahead and staked out the land; the commercial companies are the city planners, the immigrants, the people who took the frontier the pioneers had discovered and make it cease to be frontier.

For that, after all, is what is happening. We have passed one more frontier—we who in a century and a half have passed so many frontiers. And the passing took place in a singularly dramatic way.

One plane missing, far out on the lonely Pacific. Another plane headed into the dawn, half a world away. And the day of the ocean pioneers is closed!

Step Toward "Big" News

ONE OF the most important events of 1937, from the standpoint of the well-being of the masses, may have been recorded modestly the other day when Dr. Edward Carl Rosenow of the Mayo Clinic announced that he had isolated the germ which caused infantile paralysis.

In itself, that may not mean much. Its significance lies in the fact that it paves the way for the development of a serum to cure or prevent this dreaded malady. It is the first step—and a long, promising one—toward conquest of one of the scourges of the human race.

It is sometimes hard to tell what the really "big news" of the day is. Our attention is engrossed with wars and rumors of wars, with strikes and statistics of recovery, and with other momentous matters. But from the viewpoint of history, the biggest news of 1937 may well be the work of this unassuming western scientist.

Inflamed Kidney Requires Close Study of All Factors in the Patient's Life

(No. 268)

In the period between an acute inflammation of the kidneys and a gradual change to the chronic form, there may be an intermediary condition which is sometimes described as a nephrosis.

Symptoms associated with this form of inflammation of the kidney are that of a rather long standing, there is a little more collection of fluid in the tissues, and there is a tendency toward anemia, indicating that the red coloring matter of the blood and the total number of red blood cells have been decreased.

Usually the heart and blood vessels are not greatly involved in the earlier stages, but later the blood pressure may rise.

The urine in this form of kidney disease is usually decreased in amount. The amount of albumin is considerable and when the urine is centrifuged and the solid material examined under a microscope, it is found to consist largely of material from the kidney tissue.

Functions of the kidneys as tested by the various functional methods may still indicate a reasonable amount of performance. However, unless something definite is done to aid these patients, the function will consistently decrease until it becomes serious.

In fact, the eventual result is suppression of the function of the kidney with the appearance of uremia.

In this form of nephritis, again, the patient requires a most careful and complete examination so that every possible focus of infection may be removed if any are found.

To aid the patient in overcoming this condition he should be required to rest in bed. As much rest as possible must also be given to the kidney by cutting down the total amount of fluid and salt that the patient takes into his body.

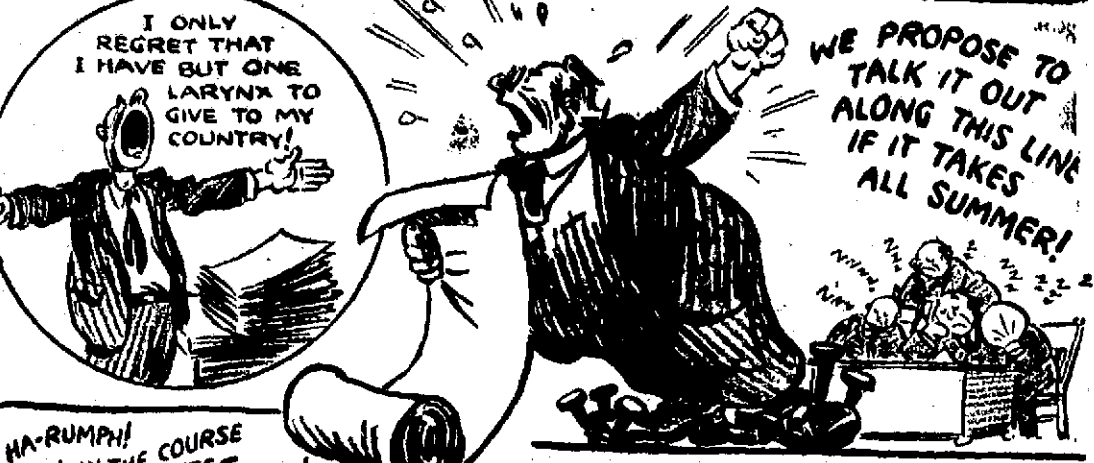

In order to regulate these satisfactorily, it is necessary that the physician study the entire diet, concerning himself with the total amount of protein.

It should be obvious, then, that every patient with an inflammation of the kidney requires individual study and regulation of his diet, his rest, the total amount of fluids taken and every other factor of his life in accordance with the conditions found.

Certain drugs are known which have a special value in causing the body to rid itself of excess fluid. Sometimes it is necessary to resort to drugs of this type. In other instances the fluid may be removed from the abdominal cavity or even from the lungs by special surgical procedure.

The Court Bill Debate

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Child's Acting His Age Shows Right Development.

A child's behavior changes with his age. He has different reasons for doing things as a baby than those that urge him at six, and the same evolution of conduct continues through his developing years. Parents who realize this are fortunate.

One cannot, with success, make a rule for four-year-old Johnny that would apply to eight-year-old Harry, because Johnny's judgment is only beginning to sprout, while Harry already knows the difference between tossing his cap in the street and throwing it up in the air.

The child gradually outgrows his childishness. Each year adds to his discrimination between right and wrong, between sensible and foolish things.

At first he develops his senses and his dexterity. This is the active stage when lamps are less sacred than the compelling desire to climb the back of a chair.

"Why and How" Complex
The young child is learning how to handle himself and to notice effects. Then he graduates later into the real curiosity stage. It is hard to tell when one stops and the other begins.

There is a plan now behind his putting stones in the electric mixer, or his stepping on an egg. It is the toy-crushing age, the clock-unwinding and the tail-pulling time. Deliberate, but yet not completely naughty, motivated as it is by the compelling drive to get at causes. The big thing is to learn, no matter what the cost, just how things work and why.

Succeeding this comes ego. The boy, or the girl—but chiefly the boy—begins to feel himself a power. And he can only test his power by experiment. Can he cross the railroad bridge, or jump from the top of the garage? Maybe he drives the forbidden car around the block.

After this comes the cock-sure stage, when he thinks he has lived long enough.

Comedy and Pathos of an Army at War

The humor and pathos of the American army during war-time, as seen through the eyes of the Abby children, might be a good characterization of "My War With the United States," by Ludwig Bemelmans (Viking $2.50). Here is a frank portrait of life in the army, during that effort to preserve democracy, as seen by a naive, honest and perfectly candid lad who had left his native Tyrol to sail for America and hunt Indians, only to land in the ranks of an army composed of civilians like himself.

It's not really a war book—for Bemelmans is concerned only with telling about this strange, foreign madhouse into which he has been thrown. He joined the army, the author says quite frankly, merely out of curiosity. And as he apparently was completely devoid of inhibitions, army life was thoroughly enjoyable to him, although probably not to his superiors.

The illustrations by the author add a great deal to the enjoyment assured by the book, and help the reader realize that Bemelmans is one of those rare individuals always completely himself, never putting on an act for the benefit of the bystander.

The books is not comedy, and real writing, worthwhile reading—and offers an experience every reader will look back on with delight. However, Bemelmans' "war" is going to be a hard book to own, for in reading it, everyone must think of a number of close friends who will enjoy it too. My hunch is to buy two copies—one to keep and one to lend.—W. V.

not only act his age, but should. Unless his intelligence quotient is under average, the ten-year-old should not be playing with things a five-year-old enjoys. This is important, therefore it is best for him to have some companions of approximate years. He should be skating, riding, constructing things and playing ball, not fussing too much with sand piles or making paper chains, any more than the five-year-old should be engrossed in a rattle.

It follows that if we expect a child to act his age, by the same token he cannot always control the urges of his years. He varies, but he goes on making mistakes, not too deliberately but, as we say, because the Old Nick drives him. And Old Nick is just himself.

How Robert Taylor Was Discovered—the True Story Revealed at Last

HOLLYWOOD.—The true story of how Robert Taylor was discovered, as told by E. E. Clive, is not quite like the yarn that is incorporated in most of the life stories you have read.

His studio and the Taylor biographers always have related simply that Ben Piazza, a talent-seeking executive, saw Taylor in a college theatrical performance and signed him up.

The facts are that Taylor, fresh out of Pomona College, went to Clive four years ago and begged for a part in one of the English comedies which Clive then was producing at the Hollywood Playhouse.

After a tryout, Taylor was hired and given the role of a movie actor—a member of a film troupe making some scenes in the castle of an impoverished duke. Since other members of the stock company were English, Taylor thought up the name of John Stanhope for himself, and that's how he was billed in the program.

The play, "M. Lord the Duke," opened briefly enough, and the following evening, Taylor sought out Clive and excitedly announced that he had been offered a movie contract by a man named Ben Piazza.

"How much?" asked Clive. "Thirty-five dollars a week," said Taylor. "If that's all he thinks of you," said the English actor, "you'd better turn it down. Tell him you want more dramatic training. Tell him I'm going to take this company to New York. Tell him you think you're going to get a better part and a lot more money."

For three days after that, Taylor avoided his boss. The latter knew what was up. He cornered the young man and accused him: "You signed that movie contract, didn't you?"

Taylor admitted that he had. "But I got more dough," he added. "A lot more dough. I'll get $50 a week!" When he tells the story, Clive shakes his head in simulated sorrow and says: "... and now look where he is as the result of not taking my advice!"

Wagtail Wagtail
It's told about a certain movie executive, a man whose life's passion is gambling. He wants the lot to bet on everything—automobile licenses, the number of blonds passing a corner in 10 minutes, gross receipts of pictures, horse races, football games, tomorrow's weather. His first response to almost any statement is "How much do you want to bet?"

A friend was killed in an automobile accident. The movie man rode to the emergency hospital, learned his friend's fate, and reluctantly went to the victim's home to break the news. A woman answered the door. He asked, "Are you the widow Schmaltz?"

"I'm Mrs. Schmaltz," she said. "But I'm not a widow."

"No?" he said. "How much do you want to bet?"

All Accounts Squared

An eastern banker who's on the board of directors of a motion picture company visited Hollywood recently and was being shown around the lot by a minor actor. When the tour was finished, the money-man said, "I've enjoyed this very much. It's been 10 years since I was in a movie studio."

"You've got nothing on me," sighed the actor. "It's been 10 years since I was in a bank."

Talent Cornered

It's true that Hollywood has just about cornered the supply of entertainment talent. At least two scouts, one of them representing a group of Broadway producers, are in town to recruit actors and actresses for the stage.

And Irving Hoffman, commuting columnist for The Hollywood Reporter, or movie trade paper, writes sadly of his departure from the Gold Coast.

"We're packing the white pants and all other Hollywood ensignia for a return to Broadway. And we pause to wonder why. Wonder why we leave a feast for a famine. In all truth, Broadway has moved west. What's left on the Hudson is a shucked cocoon. The butterfly has flown."

"We'll go east and wander along 'Swing Street' and other alleys of the Deserter Village. The friends we'll see, the folk we'll meet, will be Hollywood visitors wondering audibly why they came."

Destiny

None knows the purpose or the plan, If it were in the power of man To read his destiny aright And settle it by force, he might, O'erwhelmed by stronger ranks, despair, Bewailing burdens he must bear. But strength and wisdom hand in hand Not always join to take command. Nor is it possible to guess Precisely failure and success. What now seems good to look upon May spell disaster later on. This is the task of every man: To serve the truth as best he can; To know life's blend of smiles and tears And wait the judgment of the years. And, though in darkness he may grope, Never to part from faith or hope. And in God's own good time may wrest From failure victory's shining crest. E. A. G.

Nazi Girls Swim in Brief Bathing Suits

HERE'S the type of swimming suit that German bathing beauties are wearing this season. Exhibited at the Leipzig Fair, it includes brief trunks of soft scarlet woolen, fastened to a form-fitting bra top by means of matching wool straps in zigzag effect. The suit is absolutely backless with only narrow straps, which cross in back, to hold the top in place.

and grave were delivered by the Rev. James Thomas, elderly Methodist leader and long-time friends of the Robinson family. To the right of the family sat the pallbearers. Among them was former Vice President Charles G. Dawes who sat through most of the service with his head in his hands. Near him Barney Burgh listened intently to the service, behind and around them were massed the congressional delegation, all members of which were honorary pallbearers.

In the throng were Governors Bailey of Arkansas, Leche of Louisiana and Marland of Oklahoma. Because hundreds had waited through an earlier shower and much heat to view Robinson's body, the funeral procession from the state capitol to the church was delayed 15 minutes.

The flag draped casket was carried down the broad capitol steps by a military escort and through a double-file of state troopers standing smartly at present arms. Into the hearse with the casket were placed only two floral offerings—one a giant spray of Easter lilies presented by the Robinson family; the other the massive wreath of bay, streamered with dull bronze taffeta, a personal tribute from President Roosevelt.

The 153rd infantry band, Arkansas national guard, led the procession along streets lined with citizens. The funeral moved slowly, in pace with a muffled march played by the band. Along the route, heads were bared by civilians and officers snapped smartly to attention.

Near the church the sidewalks were jammed. The body was placed before the flower-banked altar and chancel, the casket unopened. The unreserved portion of the church had been filled for hours. Now the lower section filled promptly, first

Shaft for Fliers Will Be Erected

Monument to Be Set Up Where Russian Fliers Landed

SAN JACINTO, Calif.—(AP)—A citizens' meeting called by the chamber of commerce decided to erect a monument outlining in miniature the world record-breaking Russian transpolar plane which landed near here Wednesday.

The monument will be set up at the exact spot in the cow pasture where the three Soviet fliers came down after a nonstop flight from Moscow across the North Pole.

The monument will be fashioned from white and colored stone and quartz. Permanent markers and guides will be provided to enable tourists to find the spot.

Sight-seers in even greater numbers are still coming to see the great 11-ton monoplane. Peace officers, taking turns by day and night, are keeping a heavy guard about the plane until it can be removed and shipped back to Russia.

With close friends, state officials, congressional delegates, pallbearers and then members of the family.

Mrs. Robinson, weeping silently, was supported by her brothers, Crady and Charles G. Miller. Robinson's sisters sat in adjacent pews, black-garbed and weeping at times.

U. S. Makes New Fighting Planes

Armored Destroyer Carries 6 Machine Guns and Bombs

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The army is ready to send into the air what it terms the most formidable fighting plane in the world, a monoplane for combat in the stratosphere.

The new five-seated fighter, being prepared for test flights at the Bell Aircraft Corporation plant, Buffalo, N. Y., is a radical departure from previous military designs. The Air Corps will devise new tactics to fit its use up to altitudes of 30,000 feet.

The all-metal, armored plane is a twin-motored pusher with propellers behind the wings, carries six machine guns and lightbombs, and has new devices to increase its speed and fighting power.

The War Department said the plane had been designed to cope with the giant bombing planes of the flying fortress type now flying in the leading nations of the world.

After factory tests the plane will be flown to Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, for experimental flights by army men, and then sent to the general headquarters air force at Langley Field, Va.

"To be a successful fighter," the department explained, "a flying machine must be much faster than its target. It is believed this plane can overhaul any air targets. Another essential quality in an air destroyer is the ability to strike with power when it has engaged its prey. This plane answers with six guns, more powerful armament than ever before carried on a fighter."

Officials emphasized the new plane is now a small airplane as have been previous pursuit planes. It will have a pilot, copilot-navigator, radio operator-gunner, and two outboard wing gunners.

The new plane has heated compartments for the crew.

The newspapers said there has been a steady growth of American-Japanese friendship since cessation of the policy of former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson. They referred to Stimson's protest against the 1931-32 Japanese campaigns in Manchuria.

Ever since the Sino-Japanese situation became acute both the government and the press have displayed worry lest the great powers try to mediate or intervene.

Death Splits Democratic Team

The mantle of Democratic leader in the U. S. Senate, which Senator Joseph T. Robinson so long wore, is expected to fall to Senator Alben W. ## Own Son Jailed On Arson Charge

California Chief of Police Issues Order Against His Son

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif.—(AP)—Police Chief Frank Kisinger of Needles swore out a complaint Sunday charging his son, Logan, 19, with arson.

The youth and Carl Andes, 21, are accused of setting fire to a warehouse at Needles July 8, causing $1,000 damage. District Attorney Stanley Mussell said they had admitted setting the fire just for the fun of it.

Sheriff Emmett L. Shay said the youths admitted also that they had set fire to two Needles residences previously, but these blazes were extinguished without serious damage.

The youths were arrested after Chief Kisinger called in an arson investigator representing insurance underwriters and reported to him that the fires appeared to be clear cases of arson.

Taylor Wins Over Lumberjacks, 5-3

Coop's Home Run Nullified When Teammate Greeted Him at 3rd Base

The Williams Lumber company baseball team dropped a 5 to 3 decision to Taylor before a good-sized crowd at Fair park Sunday afternoon.

The Lumberjacks came from behind twice to tie the score and forge ahead. The visitors, however, went back into the lead on errors and misplays by the Hope team.

Manager Lloyd Coop went in as a pinch hitter and lifted the ball over the right field fence for a home run with a man on base.

Russell, substitute Hope catcher, greeted Coop as he rounded third base with a hand-shake. Taylor players protested interference with Coop and the manager's score was nullified.

Disheartened, the Lumberjacks were unable to score again. Hubert (Blackie) Elliott pitched good ball for Hope, striking out a dozen batters and allowing only two hits until the late innings.

The PAYOFF

The ugly jinx which hounds middle-weight champions has laid its heavy hand on Vince Dundee.

Harry Greb first felt the curse. The Pittsburgh Windmill went blind in one eye and then was threatened with loss of sight in the other. When he submitted to a novacation he died under the knife.

Tiger Flowers, whose savage punches lashed Greb along the dark corridor to the operating room, died a short while after when surgeons attempted to remove puffy flesh from around his eyes.

The Tigah, a fearless, ferocious fellow, died of fright, they say. Hot leather didn't phase him, but cold steel did.

Now Vince Dundee, who won the middleweight title a few years after Flowers, is threatened with blindness. Vince, suffering from an infection of his right eye for some time, had been warned to stay away from the ring. But he was stubborn, or maybe he needed the money for doctors—anyway—about a month ago Vince hopped to Pittsburgh for a fight with one Honeyboy Jones.

A hemorrhage spurted out and Dundee was rushed to the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary the other day for an operation. Doctors hope for the best.

Southern League Stands Alone

The Southern League is about to free itself of all foreign entanglements. All the Southern teams are privately owned with the exception of the Chattanooga Lookouts, who are the property of Washington.

Birmingham, of course, has an agreement with the Chicago Cubs, and Nashville works with the New York Giants, and the Cleveland Indians have first call on New Orleans players, and so forth. But the clubs themselves are owned and operated by local citizens.

Now it appears that the Lookouts are going to win their emancipation from the big league yoke and return to home ownership.

The fans have been so disgusted with the team's showing and the failure of the Washington club to provide better talent that they have been treating the ball park as if it had smallpox signs hanging on the gates.

"The fans asked for Ossie Bluege, Red Kress, and Carl Reynolds," says one observer, "and Clark Griffith sent them his adopted son, Calvin, as president of the team. It capped the climax."

So it appears that a group of prominent business men are going to buy the team, and install popular Joe Engel in his old job as president, the position he was ousted from in favor of young Calvin.

Burling Forgets He's in Brooklyn

Burling Grimes makes it unanimous.

Spurgeon Chandler, New York Yankees' rookie pitcher, started it when he declared that it is easier to patch in the major leagues than in the minors because your support is so much better and you don't have to work as often.

Beau Bell of the St. Louis Browns came along behind Chandler and allowed as how he found it easier to hit in the big leagues because you don't have to bat in night games and because there aren't so many wild geese throwing at you.

Now the genteel Mr. Grimes says it seems to him that a major league manager has a snap job comparatively.

"In the minors," says Mr. Grimes, "you players don't know the very fundamentals of baseball. And you don't have enough men to go around—especially pitchers."

Seems a shame that the poor pilot of the Brooklyn Dodgers can't get a managering a big league team.

Myer's Prophecy May Come True

Back in the spring of 1936, Buddy Myer, who had won the American League batting championship the previous season, was asked if he thought he would repeat.

"No," said the Washington second baseman. "I won't. But I'll tell you who will win it—that fellow over there," and Buddy pointed to Cecil Travis, his side-kick.

Travis, converted from third base to shortstop last year, failed to fill the bill and didn't play regularly, so Buddy's prophecy fell through.

But now that Travis has improved in the field he is playing regularly and batting, if you please, better than .360. He's hot on the heels of Lou Gehrig, American League leader, and coming all the time.

Buddy may be right after all.

Wimbledon Top Cabin — Marble

FORREST HILLS, L. I.—Alice Marble never saw a tournament to equal the one at Wimbledon, from which the American singles champion has just returned.

"There is something about it, the splendor and the importance of the occasion, that gets you," says the San Francisco miss. "When you walk out on the center court you get a feeling that it is impossible to describe. That is why I hope to take first honors on my next attempt, which will be next summer. Naturally I wanted to win on my first try, but after all I did no worse than the many others who have attempted this feat. Even Suzanne Lenglen was not able to win on her first trip."

Miss Marble is practicing for a few days on the West Side Tennis Club courts here. She will compete at Seabright and in the Wightman Cup matches in preparation for the nationals.

Indian Wrestler On Mat Program

On Pasha of Bombay to Meet Turk Powell of Birmingham

During the past three years almost every country from Canada to China has been represented in local rings. Wrestlers from Mexico, China, Germany, Russia, Ireland, Canada, and Italy, have made appearances here.

Tuesday nights main event at the American Legion stadium brings in a foreign wrestler just a bit different from the usual run of muscleheads.

All Pasha, dark skinned native of Bombay, India, has been signed to meet Turk Powell of Birmingham, Ala., in the two hour feature match.

Little is known of the wrestling ability of the Birmingham boy but All Pasha comes here highly recommended by other promoters all over the country.

In the five round semi-final fight D. K. Carson meets Edmond Davis. Two weeks ago Carson won a decision over Davis but was promptly challenged to a return fight. Both these boys are heavyweights.

In the four-round feature preliminary, Pinkie Carrigan meets Johnny Clark, the only boy to defeat Tufty Reno here last year.

A good three-round preliminary plus a good battle royal will open the card. It starts at 8:15 promptly.

Ozan Team Defeats Washington, 14-11

OZAN—(Special)—The Ozan Aces battled off another winning game with Washington, on the Washington diamond, Friday afternoon, with a score of 14-11. The Aces may be little, but for the past month, they have been loud, having won all games played the last four weeks.

Should one observe the town lots around the town pump, perhaps he would understand why the so-called little scrub team of two months ago has begun to make for itself a name. Workouts in earnest go on daily from sun up to sun down.

Clem Ball, who has been a patient in the Army and Navy hospital, at Hot Springs, has returned to his home in Ozan.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Green have returned home from a two weeks stay with relatives in Houston and Beeville, Texas. While they were away, they toured a part of the Rio Grande river valley and Old Mexico. Their son, Milan, who has been working in Houston, returned home with them.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Smith left Ozan, Saturday morning for a several weeks camp at Caddo Gap.

Mr. and Mrs. Troy Smeed are visiting Mrs. Smeed's parents in Nashville.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Varnado and family have moved into the H. C. Murphy house, south of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ball of Nashville were Sunday evening guests of Mr.

DiMaggio Is Hero in Yankee Victory

Hits Homer in Ninth With Bases Loaded to Beat Bob Feller

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Slugging Joe DiMaggio defeated blazing Bob Feller Sunday before 60,000 persons when the New York outfielder's ninth inning home run with the bases full gave the Yankees a five to one victory over the Cleveland Indians.

It was the youthful speed ball hurler's fourth defeat in his four official major league starts.

Feller threw the Yankees a hail and Mrs. Jerome Smith.

Billy Joe Ball has just completed a high school summer course offered by the Nashville High School.

J. W. (Bill) Gist, formerly of Ozan, will serve as assistant manager of the Stuart Grocery Store, opened in Prescott, Saturday.

Friends here congratulate him and wish him much success in his new business.

of strikes. He mastered them all—all but "DiMag".

He allowed but seven hits and DiMaggio got three of them. He hurled seven strikeouts. But his own ninth inning error made possible four runs that resulted. The fifth run against him was literally kicked in.

Charlie Ruffing kept the eight hits he yielded well scattered. He led off in the ninth with a single. Crosetti sacrificed but Feller threw low to first and both runners were safe. A pass to Rolfe filled the bases.

DiMaggio was up. Previously he hit a long fly which Solters missed for a triple. Then "DiMag" connected and sent the next one into the seats in left field. It was his 24th home run of the season.

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden disclosed to the House of Commons Monday that Great Britain has demanded that Spanish insurgents release the captured British Merchantman Molton.

Cubs Take Double Bill From Dodgers

Bruins Retain Slim Grip on National League First Place

BROOKLYN—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs poked out 26 hits Sunday to sweep a doubleheader with the Brooklyn Dodgers 7 to 6 and 9 to 4 and retain their slim grip on first place in the National League.

They called on their perennial lifesaver, Old Charley Root, to sweep threatening Brooklyn rally in the ninth inning and save the opener, in which they hit Van Mungo and two other Dodger pitchers for a dozen safe blows.

Curt Davis went the full nine innings in the nightcap for the first time this year and breezed in with the victory after the Cubs belted starter Fred Frankhouse out and piled up five runs in the sixth inning.

Augie Galan hit a homer in each game to lead the attack, although Frank Demaree had four safe hits in the opener, driving in two runs. Young Ken O'Dea also belted a homer in the first game, sending three runs in.

Hope for Passage Court Bill Fades

Death of Robinson Diminishes Chances, Senators Say

WASHINGTON—(P)—The death of Majority Leader Robinson has raised new doubts about the future of the administration bill to reorganize the executive branch of government. Some legislators said its chances for passing at this session have diminished.

Robinson, they said, was almost the only member of the Senate's Reorganization Committee to take an active part in pushing the bill. As chairman he directed a preliminary study of the measure and drafted a revised version which he introduced in the Senate shortly before his death.

Senator Byrd (Dem., Cal.) economy advocate who lays stress on curtailing government expenses through reorganization than do backers of the administration proposal, opposed quick action on the bill. He said he would demand full public hearings. Before Robinson's death, Byrd said, the majority leader agreed to hold hearings before submitting the measure to the Senate. Byrd, estimated several months would be necessary to explore the subject adequately.

Under the Robinson bill the president would be given broad power to transfer, group, consolidate or abolish agencies of government, although his acts would be subject to congressional review. The measure calls for extension of the merit system and establishment of a career service.

The General Accounting Office would be brought under the Budget Bureau, with a general auditing office set up to make a post audit of public accounts. The bill would also create a new cabinet post, the Department of Public Welfare, and would authorize appointment of six executive assistants to the president.

Some senators predicted that the split in Democratic ranks resulting from the court fight would carry over to consideration of government reorganization. They said many of the same senators who now oppose reorganizing the court would be lined up against the other administration measure.

Despite the attempt to avoid politics, there are rumors that considerable bounce was sandwiched into the Democratic island outfit.

CHAPTER IV

TUESDAY: "Ever hear of a man called 'Jigger' around here?" I asked Cal when he came into the kitchen this morning to fix the stoves and fill the ice boxes.

"Jigger?" Cal repeated in a questioning voice. Then he laughed, though not before I caught a flicker of anger in his old blue eyes. "That ain't no name, Miss Joy. What are you trying to put over on me this morning?" and, pulling his tobacco pouch from his hip pocket, he shoved a handful of rough cut into his almost toothless mouth.

"Oh, but it is," I replied. "He was here last night."

Cal's jaws dropped, and again, for a second, I caught a look of anger in his eyes when he said, "What have you got up your sleeves, Miss Joy? Better spill the beans . . . guess you're up to some city game . . . trying to put something over on us."

"Not at all, but when every one was at the movies, this man came to the door and wanted me to let him in to call a number."

"Ain't Mrs. Fenwick told you yet she don't let folks come in and use the phone, less they put up their money first. You see lots of trucks get in trouble after coming up the long hill and as there ain't no telephone nearer than a mile away they often want to use hers."

ing Cal? Had burglars here last night?"

"No, only a man wanting to use the phone; but the funny thing about him is that just before I came up here, I saw him as we crossed the Queensborough bridge. He was driving a swell car then, but last night he had a big truck, covered with tarpaulin."

"Gee, maybe he was a bandit making away with his swag," Tess suggested. "Bet Cal will make it his business to find out all about him. He's better than a newspaper!" and she laughed.

"Yes," I agreed, realizing that Cal is quite a character—"a native," Mrs. Fenwick calls him, which I suppose accounts for his queer ways, though she declares he's the mainstay of the tearoom. Well, if being able to fix electric appliances, repair furniture, raise flowers and vegetables, is the rating of "a native" I guess that's not so bad. Anyway when things go wrong here—no matter what—the cry is, "Get Cal!"

I'll remember what Tess says. Maybe I'll tackle Cal again about "Jigger" . . . he seems out of place here . . . looks like a crook.

Can't get over the idea of how perfectly ridiculous it is for a woman as rich as Mrs. Fenwick to wear herself to a frazzle running this show when she really doesn't need to do it. Cal says she has a fortune of her own, besides, whenever she goes into some new venture, her husband always puts up a wad of dough.

"He must think a lot of her," I remarked while I arranged the flowers for the tearoom. Cal threw back his head and laughed. "Dunno about that. She's always talking about expressing herself. Well, if I know the old man, he'd rather pay for her to express herself on something else than bother himself listening to her harangues."

LAUGHED when Peter said it was so clean up here he wouldn't need to wash his neck more than once a week! Kids are funny; but he's right. The air is crystal clear. We're so far from neighbors we don't get any smoke and factories are unknown near The Golden Anchor as Mrs. Fenwick calls the tearoom. Guess it was so named because some of her husband's ancestors were connected with the sea.

Cal evidently seems to feel responsible for the welfare of everyone connected with the tearoom. When I looked in at his workshop in the afternoon, he said, "Take a tip from me—never open the door at night when you're alone in the house. There's things going on in this country that would scare the daylight out of you."

I laughed. "I'm not afraid. You can't scare me."

His blue eyes twinkled and he looked hard at me for a minute, then he said, "Guess I can't. All the same, better watch out for strangers . . . you can't always trust some of the summer folks."

"Like Jigger?" I said in a low tone, as Mrs. Fenwick appeared.

He nodded. So Cal does know my strange caller after all.

WHILE life seems to run along here very smoothly on the surface with charming people as our guests, special dinners for the young folks who are in the swell camps that abound in the neighborhood, I have a hunch that there's something sinister, too. I don't know yet what it is. I told Tess how I felt when we went for a short walk in the woods.

"Oh," she said, "You're all wet. Guess I know what gets you. It's those hemlock trees . . . so tall . . . so dark . . . with their branches sweeping the ground as though shielding some mystery . . . and then when the wind blows . . . the eerie sounds might suggest ghosts, but there's nothing to it."

Maybe she's right, for the Maine woods present quite a contrast to Fifth Avenue, New York. Lovely, of course, and so fragrant, but I could hardly see myself spending my life in such surroundings. Still it's healthful and the air's like wine. No wonder Peter's cheeks are rosy, and what an appetite he has!

Mrs. Fenwick has given orders he should sleep as late as he likes in the morning, so he'll be thorough! built up before we go back to town . . . bet that was inspired by Miss Pegler. I hate the thought of having to send him to one of those huge city schools in fall. Perhaps Roger was right . . . why did I resent his suggestion to send him to boarding school? Oh, it's so easy to see what you should have done after you've cast the die.

There, a tear's fallen on my diary . . . made a horrid blot . . . I wonder what Roger's doing now . . . wonder if he's really interested in Angela.

Just mopped my tears when Tess stuck her head round the door of my room. "Here, catch this," she called. "Sorry I forgot it before." Then dashed along the corridor while a letter fluttered to the ground.
